Now For School

President Wilson advises and urges every young man who can possible do so to continue in school.

The Government is making a new and wonderful effort to provide military training for our young men without taking them away from courses of study in which they are engaged.

One of the greatest losses of the south at the time of the Civil War was just this-great groups of her young men missed their education. This resulted in a defective leadership in all lines of business and progress following the war, and the harm has hardly been overcome even yet. We must not let this present war rob a generation of youngsters of their schooling, discipline and development.

It is quite remarkable that the young men who are graduates, or advanced students in college, have done far better than any others in the officers training camps and in the management of our newly levied troops. There is something which the young men get in college which fits them for the responsibility of officers, and throughout our armies there is a surprising number of men who are very young, but whose youth is counterbalanced by their college training and who are leading our forces in a most satisfactory way.

The Government plan makes it possible to call these men into active service whenever they are actually needed, and it will no doubt bring them into effective service sooner than they could be brought by the regular training of the camps.

The Government plan at present is simply for students who are of college rank—that is those who have completed the work of a four year high school; but the Government suggests that the work of the high school should be intensified so that they will have another set of graduates in less than a year who can be pushed into college and take the place of those who may be taken from the college for army work at the end of a few months.

And while we are keeping the colleges and academies full, let us keep every district school full also. The best way to have our sons and daughters ready for their war duties is to keep them in school!

To End the War

One big wallop to win the war! And the U.S. A. is about to give it.

"With an American army of 4,000,000 men in France" says Chief of Staff P. C. March, "we can go thru the German line wherever we please!"

The army is now almost two million strong. To get the rest, the Government has let down the bars-men 18 to 45 (both inclusive), except those previously registered, are to furnish the additional strength needed to push the Huns back to the Rhine and free the world of Kaiserism.

A glorious opportunity! Small wonder that Registration Day, September 12 will cause such enthusiasm. For these men were "left out in the cold" before,-told to sit back while others fought their battles. "Why can't we fight," they asked, "we are physically fit though working in shop or field," or they "hadn't been back of desks so long they had forgotten their manhood." How keenly they felt being "not wanted"; how they fairly ached to help when they read the casualty lists.

For native born or alien, they realize plainly what they owe to this country. They realize it was time to show their gratitude for all the U.S.A. has meant and done for them-a life of peace, prosperity and happiness among men their equals.

And now their chance has come. Thirteen millions of men must register today Sept. 12. If they do not register they will not only risk certain arrest and severe punishment, but declare themselves unfit to be called Americans. When the Draft Boards discard the physically unfit, the exempt because of their family, the men in war industries, there must remain more than 2,000,000 men ready for training.

These men will give the big wallop that will end the war. Are you between 18 and 45? Present yourself at the Registration Place September 12, proudly—as an American should.

Desertion and Mutiny

Rotterdam Correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph Says There Are More Than 20,000 Deserters in Berlin Alone

London, Sept. 9 .- General demoralization of the German population and widespread and growing dissatisfaction in the German army, accompanied by mutiny and desertions, are described in a dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from its Rotterdam correspondent. The correspondent says that informa-

Nevertheless, hundreds have been arrested and generally these have been sentenced to fiften years imprisonment. Disobedience and defiance of officers is common at the front, according to the correspondent's information, and a similar spirit is shown in the munition factories, where the workers deliberately are slowing up, with the result that the output has been serionsly decreased.

Death for Rail Tampering. The military commander in the district of Altona, Prussia, has issued a proclamation, warning the populace against damaging the railroads and thus exposing military transports to danger, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen.

The proclamation, the correspondent adds, threatens the death sentence upon such persons as are found guilty of disobeying the order.

TRANS-ATLANTIC AIRCRAFT

Nine years ago. at Fort Meyer, Va. just across the Potomac River from our national capitalwriter witnessed the first public flight of a man-carrying airplane that the world had ever seen, the machine being driven by Wilbur Wright, one of the now world-famous brother-inventors. That first little plane was crude and imperfect and would now, as compared with present day aircraft, be fit only for the museum or the junk pile; however, the event marked the opening of a wonderful era. Prior to that first flight a few persons in different parts of the world had had visions of our modern airplanes, but the world's billions looked upon such persons as idle dreamers and, if the present-day work-or-fight laws had then been in force, these so-called visionaries would doubtless have been arrested as vagrants and thrown into jail or drafted into the army. During the first five years after the original flight, airplane progress was slow and unsatisfactory but, since the great war started, development has gone forward by leaps and bounds, and accomplishments have been so great that now nothing surprises us. Recently, in New York City and in certain other parts of the country airplanes, singly and in groups of from two to twenty. have become such a familiar sight that they are hardly noticed at all, and the world reads with only passing interest of such epoch-making accomplishments as the successful establishment of new aero-postal lines here and in Europe, the recent 621 mile non-stop flight of a large group of Italian planes across the Alps to Vienna and back, and the many other wonderful achievements of aviators throughout the world. It is not difficult then for us to believe even the recent astounding announcements that soon huge airplanes, each carrying 100 or more passengers, will be darting back and Washington, Sept. 9 .- Chocolate and forth across the Atlantic with such speed that it will be possible to eat breakfast in New York today and dinner in London tomorrow.

CHAPTER I-Albert N. Depew, author of the story, enlists in the United States havy, serving four years and attaining the rank of chief petty officer, first-class

CHAPTER II—The great war starts soon after he is honorably discharged from the navy and he sails for France with a determination to enlist.

CHAPTER III—He joins the Foreign Legion and is assigned to the dreadnaught Cassard where his marksmanship wins him high honors.

CHAPTER IV—Depew is detached from its ship and sent with a regiment of the Legion to Flanders where he soon finds aimself in the front line trenches.

CHAPTER V—He is detailed to the artillery and makes the acquaintance of the "76's", the wonderful French guns that have saved the day for the allies on many a battlefield. Before seeing any action, he is ordered back to his regiment in the front line trenches.

CHAPTER VI-Depew goes "over the top" and "gets" his first German in a bayonet fight.

CHAPTER VII.

Stopping the Huns at Dixmude. I was standing in a communication trench that connected one of our frontline trenches with a crater caused by the explosion of a mine. All around me men of the third line were coming up, climbing around, digging, hammering, shifting planks, moving sandbags up and down, bringing up new timbers, reels of barbed wire, ladders, cases of ammunition, machine guns, trench mortars-all the things that make an army look like a general store on legs.

The noise of the guns was just deafening. Our own shells passed not far above our heads, so close were the enemy trenches, and the explosions were so near and so violent that when The Bombers Were Fishing in Their you rested your rifle butt on something solid, like a rock, you could feel it shake and hum every time a shell landed.

Our first line was just on the out- he was trying to talk, with the tears skirts of the town, in trenches that rolling down over the raw flesh. Almost before they occupied the crater the wires were laid and reached back to us, and the order came for us to remain where we were until further

Then we got the complete orders. We were to make no noise but were all to be ready in ten minutes. We put on goggles and respirators. In ten minutes the bombers were to leave the trenches. Three mines were to explode and then we were to take and hold a certain portion of the enemy trenches not far off. We were all ready to start up the ladders when they moved Nig's section over to ours and he sneaked up to me and whispered behind his hand, "Be a sport, Doc: make it fifty-fifty and gimme a chance.

The front lines had taken their trenches and gone on and you could see them, when you stood on a parapet, running about like hounds through the enemy communication trenches bombing out dugouts, disarming prisoners-very scary-looking in their masks and goggles. The wounded were coming back slowly. Then we got busy with our work in the dugouts over and clouted out the best friend I had in my company. Before the war he had been one of the finest singers in the Paris opera houses. When he was with us he used to say that the only difference between him and Caruso was $2,500 a night.

A pollu and I dragged him into a dugout, but it was too late. One side of his face was blown off; the whole right side of him was stripped off and four fingers of the right hand were gone.

I stuck my head out of the dugout and there was the captain discussing the matter with himself, cursing the Germans from here to Helgoland and putting in a word for the bombs every once in a while. All up and down the trenches you could hear our men SENATE VOTES THE DRY BILL cursing the Germans in all kinds of languages. Believe me, I did my bit and I could hear somebody else using Attempt to Delay Nation-Wide Prohigood old United States cuss words, too. It certainly did not make me feel any better, but it gave me something to do. I think that was why all of us cursed so much then, though we were pretty handy with language at of beer in the United States will be any time. But when you are under heavy fire like that and cannot give it back as good as you get, you go crazy unless you have something to do. Cussing is the best thing we could think of.

Up the trench the third bay was simply smashed in and the Germans in it and in ours. The captain yelled out that he was going up to the next bay to examine it, but no more had he got there than he had his head taken clean off his shoulders.

At daybreak our trenches were all pounded in and most of our dugouts vere filled up. Then Fritz opened up with his artillery fire right on us. We thought they were going to charge and we figured their barrage would lift and we could see them come over.

We received orders to stand to with fixed bayonets. Then the man at the periscope shouted, "They come!"

A battery directly behind us went into action first and then they all joined in and inside of five minutes about eight hundred guns were raising Cain with Fritz. The Boches were caught square in No Man's Land and our rifles and machine guns simply mowed them down. Many of them came half way across, then dropped their guns and ran for our trenches to give themselves up. They could not have got back to their own trenches. It was a shame to waste a shell on

That is the way they look when you have got them. But when they have got you-kicks, cuffs, bayonet jabsthere is nothing they will not do to had his mask and face blown off; yet add to your misery. They seem to think that it boosts their own courage.

An artillery fire like ours was great fun for the gunners, but it was not much fun for Fritz or for us in the One night, while I was lying back in trenches. We got under cover almost as much as Fritz and held thumbs for the gunners to get through in a hurry. Then the fire died down and it was

The dead lay in the trenches all day and at night they were carried out by working parties to "Stiff park," as were aiming at you direct-and there I called it.

A man with anything on his mind ought not to go to the front-line trenches. He will be crazy inside of a month. The best way is not to care whether it rains or snows: there are plenty of important things to worry about.

77th Inf., Machine Gun Co., Camp Meade, Md. August 29, 1918. Dear Professor Edwards:

Since I came into the Army, I have often thought of you in connection with Berea College, and I have always found myself proud of the fact that I was once a student in your department at Berea. Your careful instruction was good for me, and now I can well realize some actual efforts.

Many times since the day when I graduated from "Foundation," have I wished that I could recall the afternoon of the supper party enjoyed by my class just a few days of fuel and containers. Breweries and before its graduation. We were at the "Grove," as you remember, and a most inspiring program was rendered by teachers and members of the class. How I wish that I could again experience such helpful and lasting inspiration! Last week, as I read in The Citizen, the letter which ber 1, according to William H. Austin, Ben McGuire had written to you, I was made to recall to memory the pleasant atmosphere which accompained him while we were classmates. His letter reminded me of the faith which I have always exercised in him. He is the kind of PROFITS IS HOUSE THEME man that must be used in the winning of this titanic war. What is a Branch

The Branch House is the place in the packing organization where what the packing plant does for you is put where you can use it.

Both are the natural result of growth and development in the living thing they belong to.

Swift & Company Branch Houses are located in distributing centers all over the country. They are fitted out with refrigerating equipment to keep meat cool, sweet and fresh.

Each one is in personal charge of a man who believes in what Swift & Company is doing for people and wants to help do it.

They are directed by men who have spent years learning how to get better meat cheaper to the places where it is needed.

Meat is shipped to the branch houses direct from the packing plants in Swift & Company's refrigerator cars, in such quantities that it can be disposed of while fresh and sweet.

Your meat dealer comes here to buy your meat for you-unless someone else can treat him better then we can.

So you need the branch house in order to live well; and the branch house and the packing plant need each other, in order to be useful to you.

I. The Parable of the Talents.

This parable, like that of the Ten Virgins, is associated with the second coming of Christ. In both instances there is evident an unpreparedness on the part of the people. In the first case there is failure of the inward life; in the second, there is failure to use the gifts which have been entrusted to them. The first was failure to watch; the second was failure to work. By talents is meant, the gifts which God has entrusted to his servants. It may he natural endowments, special enduements of the Spirit, or it may be the gospel of Jesus Christ. With reference to these talents note:

Their distribution (vv. 14, 15). (1) A sovereign one. The servants belong to the Lord as well as the money. (2) An intelligent one. The distribution was made on the basis of be incapable of using two or five. (3) A purposeful one. The talents were given to be traded with. They were not given for the servant's own use, but stock-in-trade for the enrichment of the master.

2. Employment of the talents (vv.

16-18). recognized that the talents did not belong to them. The two-talented man and the five-talented man put their talents to use, which resulted in a the right use of talents increases them. The one-talented man hid his in the earth. The unmistakable sign of the one-talented man is that he is hiding his talent. The two-talented and fivetalented men are always busy.
